Editorial Comment

Gun buy back programs seem to be happening more and more, but lots of questions need to be asked about them. Here are a few: Are they really lawful? Does the government agency conducting the buy back have lawful authority to operate the buy back? If so, where does the money come from? If it's taxpayer money, how do the taxpayers feel about having their government buy property just so it can be destroyed? Do the programs hurt the poor by further depriving them of an affordable means of effective self-defense? Doesn't government interfere with commerce (and tend to drive up used gun prices) when it prevents these guns from being introduced into the legal market? Do the "no-questions-asked" buy backs give criminals an opportunity to steal a few guns for a little quick cash? What would happen if a few pro-gun citizens would show up at buy backs to protest, videotape, and maybe offer to buy some of the guns at a higher price? Would the sellers be discouraged if they saw protesters with cameras?

WWW Review

Auctionarms.com is well on its way to becoming the premier gun auction site on the Web. The site is very well categorized with a clean, friendly layout, a very good search feature (which will return all open auction items if you click when the search box is blank) and a friendly but effective writing style. They have other nice features, including the ability to view completed auctions and a "Wish List" where you can post your wants. At press time, there were over 3200 open auctions and over 16,500 registered users. Since their debut in November of 1998, they've run over 55,000 auctions. Highly recommended site.

The Armed Citizen

Reprinted with the permission of the NRA. Studies indicate that firearms are used over 2 million times a year for personal protection, and that the presence of a firearm, without a shot being fired, prevents crime in many instances. Shooting usually can be justified only where crime constitutes an immediate, imminent threat to life, limb, or, in some cases, property. Anyone is free to quote or reproduce these accounts. After five break-ins at his Venice, Florida, home in fewer than six months, Jack Foster had had enough. Foster, a retired policeman, was awakened early one morning in yet another invasion of his privacy and soon found himself scuffling with a scofflaw. Foster grabbed a gun and fired three shots at the intruder, seriously wounding him. "You have the inalienable right to defend yourself, up to and including using deadly force when you feel your life or the life of a family member is threatened," said Sarasota County Sheriff's Lt. Bill Stookey of the incident. - (Sarasota Herald-Tribune, Sarasota, FL, 4/21/98)

Women and Children First!

An excellent resource for women is the organization "AWARE" (Arming Women Against Rape & Endangerment). Their motto is "Effective self-protection for intelligent women who want help, not hype". Among their many terrific resources is their "Self-Protection Quiz" at: www.aware.org/quiz.htm. The quiz outlines a few common dangerous scenarios in which a woman may find herself, lists possible responses from which to choose, and then explains the possible consequences of each decision. Your thinking may well be challenged, and you will probably learn some very valuable things from this quiz! AWARE also has valuable links and suggested reading lists, plus they also welcome and insist that women please contact them for help if they are in danger right now! This may be the very best organization to which a woman can turn for good, sensible, and effective answers and information to help keep herself from harm. Visit them online at: www.aware.org and be aware!

Safe & Secure

Safety is rule number one!

One of the keys to safe gun ownership & operation is to have an owner's manual so you can properly clean, operate, and maintain your gun. Many manufacturers will supply a free manual if you write or call them. To get their address, contact a local gun shop or search online at: www.gunlinks.com/all.html

Quotes to Note

"The very atmosphere of firearms anywhere and everywhere restrains evil interference - they deserve a place of honor with all that is good."
